A Measure of Equity: Women's Progress in Higher Education

Judy Touchton with Caryn McTighe Musil and Kathryn Peltier Campbell

"A Measure of Equity: Women's Progress in Higher Education" presents the only current comprehensive overview of data on women's status in higher education. It documents areas of progress and identifies needed action to move even further down the path towards equity for women in higher education. This publication details specific areas of concern and actions that would advance gender equity in colleges and universities. The research examines women's access to college, areas of study in undergraduate and post-graduate work, and women's status as faculty, administrators, and college presidents.

March is National Women's History Month

MARCH LINKS

Theme: Women Taking the Lead to Save Our Planet

March is designated as National Women's History Month to ensure that the history of women will be recognized and celebrated in schools, workplaces, and communities throughout the country.

Why Women's History?

Multicultural American women are overlooked in most mainstream approaches to U.S. history, so the National Women's History Project champions their accomplishments and leads the drive to write women back into history. <http://www.nwhp.org/aboutnwhp/index.php>

Test Your Knowledge of Women's History

- Who was the first woman to run for President of the United States (1872)?
- Who founded Bethune-Cookman College, established the National Council of Negro Women, and served as an advisor on minority affairs to President Franklin D. Roosevelt?
- What woman was the first African-American woman to win the Nobel Prize for Literature? More...

Inclusion! The Bigger Picture

Our key question as we initiate a new millennium is "How do we live with one another?" Inclusion is about learning to live WITH one another. Inclusion means "being..." <http://www.inclusion.com/artbiggerpicture.html>

Rethinking Faculty Work and Workplaces for Women
 By Judith M. Gappa and Andrea G. Trice

Women's representation in academe is steadily increasing. But as we both know firsthand, too many women find academe uninviting, particularly when raising a family.

Diversity Matters Podcast Season 5, Episode 1

Ending LGBT Invisibility in Healthcare

Dr. Harvey Makadon

Due to real or perceived discrimination by health care providers and institutions, many lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people avoid or delay care.
