

REPARATIONS

in perspective

April 7, 2003 4-6 p.m. EDT

Bryan Center, Von Canon Hall B and C, Duke University's West Campus
Live interactive webcast at: <http://www.duke.edu/web/institute/reparations>
Free and open to the public

How have different societies redressed (or failed to redress) past violence? Scholars assess legal, philosophical, and economic issues surrounding reparations to descendants of African-American slaves in the context of Ancient Roman encounters with Egypt and India, white interactions with Native Americans, Japanese reparations to Koreans, and South African attempts at "truth and reconciliation." Discussion to follow.

Introduction: Cathy N. Davidson
Director, Franklin Humanities Institute, Duke University

Opening Remarks: Dr. John Hope Franklin
James B. Duke Professor Emeritus, Duke University

Moderator: William Darity, Jr.
Director, Institute of African-American Research
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Panelists:
Chungmoo Choi, East Asian Languages & Literature, University of California at Irvine
Adrienne Davis, School of Law, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Wahneema Lubiano, Literature Program, Duke University
Grant Parker, Classical Studies, Duke University
Orin Starn, Cultural Anthropology, Duke University

Concluding Remarks: Richenel Ansano
Associate Director, Franklin Humanities Institute, Duke University

FOLLOW-UP VIDEOCONFERENCE, April 9, 2003, 12:00-2:00 p.m., Room 240, John Hope Franklin Center, 2204 Erwin Rd., Durham, NC.
FHI Seminar Fellows discuss reparations with a panel of scholars from Spelman College and Harvard University. Free and open to the public.

Parking for the April 7th event will be available in the Bryan Center visitors lot off Science Drive.
Parking for the April 9th event will be available in the Duke Medical Center parking deck at the corner of Erwin Road and Fulton Street. Vouchers to offset the cost of parking in this deck will be handed out at the event.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON EITHER EVENT: Call 919-668-1901 or visit www.duke.edu/web/institute.

The Franklin Humanities Institute gratefully acknowledges the ongoing support of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the Offices of the Vice Provost of Interdisciplinary Studies and the Dean of Arts and Sciences, Duke University.